Paoli Downs Narberth 4-3 in First Title Game; Boro Nine Wins Second by 3-0 Count

Noblitt and Sims Star in West-erners' Victory Last Saturday.

McKEE'S WORK SURPRISES

By DAVE CASEY

The inability of John Jackson to puzzle the slugging outfit representing Paoli, coupled with a great pitching performance by Jimmy Noblitt, allowed the first-half champions to gain a 4-3 victory over Narberth in the first game of the Main Line League championship series. The game was played last Saturday at Narberth and the large crowd of Main Line fans in attendance saw one of the most exciting contests of the season, with the final result in doubt until the last man went out in the ninth inning.

Although the lead gained by Paoli in the first and second innings was enough to insure their victory, the sensational pitching of Jim McKee, youthful Narberth hurler who replaced Jackson in the second inning, was the outstanding feature of the game. McKee, with plenty of speed on his fast one and using a most deceiving change of pace, shut out the Paoli team for the last seven innings, allowing but two hits and fanning seven of the visiting batsmen. Jim's great work was a total surprise to many of the Narberth fans as he had pitched but one league

ALLOWED BUT TWO HITS

By DAVE CASEY

Bill Reynolds, former West Catholic all round athlete, rose to his greatest heights as a Narberth pitcher last Sunday afternoon at Paoli, when he blanked Paoli's slugging stars with two lonesome hits, allowing Gene Davis' club to gain a 3-0 victory and tie up the championship series.

Reynolds amazed the large crowd which braved the threatening weather to see the contest, by the ease and celerity with which he disposed of Paoli's usually fearsome sluggers. Only two safe hits, singles by Girard and Umbach, were gathered off his delivery, and only one Paoli runner reached second base during the game. The entire Narberth team gave their pitcher splendid support, fielding everything hit to them in an alert and efficient manner, with Harry Francis standing out with his great work in center field where he captured six Paoli drives.

School Board Pays Off $15,000 on Bonds

Two Old Series, 1906 and 1916, Reduced by This Amount.

ENROLLMENT IS 503

The reduction of the Narberth School District's debt by $15,000 was authorized at the September meeting of the School Board last Friday night.

This sum will be paid October 1st on two old bond issues, $5,000 on the 1906 series and $10,000 on the 1916 series. This will leave $5,000 of the 1906 series which matures in 5 years and $28,000 of the 1916 series which also matures in 5 years. There is also outstanding $55,000 of the 1931 series which was taken out this spring to permit the reconstruction and modernization of the school buildings.

Thus after October 1st, the total indebtedness of the School District will amount to but $88,000.

The architect's report on the building stated that work was completed with the exception of one class room which would be finished this week and the auditorium and cafeteria which will be ready for use next week. The re-

Parent-Teacher Group Holds First Meeting

Closer Bond Between Home and School Its Aim, Says Mrs. McCartney.

200 WERE PRESENT

"It is indeed a privilege and a pleasure to work in an organization that has as its object the welfare of the child and closer binding together of home and school," said Mrs. Samuel McCartney, president of the Narberth Parent-Teacher Association at the opening meeting of the fall season held on Monday evening in the Legion Room of the Community Building.

"Each child," she continued, "must be given the right to develop according to his or her capabilities, under the careful guidance of parents and teachers. To bring this about each parent must consider it as an individual responsibility."

"Your most valuable possession is your child. We have had whole-hearted response to our few calls for help so far this year but we want each mother and each father to know that we want and need their co-operation. Will you please offer your assistance to the chairman of the committee on which you would like to serve?"

The meeting was held at the Legion Room because of the unfinished condition of the School Auditorium, the Anniversary of New Building to Be Marked by Intensive Campaign.

TO DECREASE THE DEBT

Officials of the Narberth M. E. Church have adopted as a permanent policy that each anniversary occasion of their beautiful new building will be marked by some outstanding program of constructive church character.

This year the outstanding work of the local congregation will be an enthusiastic and determined effort to obtain such additional financial assistance from members and friends that the present indebtedness which has been carried since Dedication Day, one year ago, will be materially decreased. All who have visited and inspected the modern and convenient edifice on Essex Avenue are fully aware that Narberth possesses one of the most imposing and convenient churches of this section.

However, to obtain such a house of worship the members of the church assumed large financial obligations. The pastor and officials fully realized when

Borough Residents Portray Colorful Tableau in Wayne's Pageant of Patriotism

The Wayne Pageant, taking place on the grounds of the Radnor High School, this Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, has become famed throughout all Philadelphia and suburbs, because of the publicity it has received in the Philadelphia and suburban press, and because of the widely spread territory from which the casts for the numerous tableaux have been selected.

Narberth itself has been honored with the privilege of "doing" one of the most important and colorful scenes in the whole "Pageant of Patriotism" as the display is called. This is the scene of the reception tendered to General Wayne upon his return to Philadelphia from campaigns of battle, when he was met by a contingent of the Color Guard of the first city troop and escorted to the City Tavern (really old "General Wayne Inn") and there feted, by important citizens of the important city. In the receiving line are Dr. Benjamin Rush, General George Washington and General Wayne and the ladies and gentlemen, in colorful and gorgeous silks and satins pay their respects with bows and courtesies and are then served tea and mingle with each other, sipping and gos-sipping. Narberthites should proceed to view the pageant if for no other reason than to cheer the talent so ably representing their home town—

Week's News of the Main Line Sporting World

Lower Merion Opens With Episcopal Today

Oppose Churchmen on Pennypacker Field With Light But Fast Team.

MAROON LINE GREEN

By TOMMY MACKLIN

Lower Merion, scholastic champion of football in suburban Philadelphia, starts her grind for a third consecutive crown this afternoon in a contest on Pennypacker Field with Episcopal Academy. The City Line school is a new opponent in football for the Maroon team, and every effort will be made by Coach Adam and his boys to make this a victory.

There is little doubt about the fact that the Ardmore lads have tough sailing ahead of them this season. Adam has a light squad, the lightest in years, and the line is green from end to end, including all way stations. There are only three heavies on the squad, and they cannot bear the brunt of the entire scrimmage. Rinehart at center, Polilli and Ryan at tackle, are the only men who contribute much to the lard bucket, and the backfield is woefully light. But fast, reader, fast! Don't forget that point, and thereby hangs the tale of whether Adam will wear the crown of a victor again this year, or just be one of the coaches hanging around the suburbs. If Taylor, Thomas, Buck and Johnson can stand the gaff, there is a likelihood that the Maroon is in for another good year.

It is hard to tell at this time about the prospects for the season. The story hangs on just how tough is the visiting opposition. If they are not so "hot," then Lower Merion will be right at the top again. But if the other fellow has the real stuff, then the Main Line champions have a nightmare ahead of them. They will have to give their all, all the time, to make a good showing with their 1931 material.

Series Shorts

Harry "Knute" Francis, Narberth's diminutive center fielder, was kept busy in both games, having five put-outs Saturday and six on Sunday. Knute also banged out a brace of bingles in each game.

Club President Bill Durbin occupied a seat on the players' bench Sunday at Paoli and gave our boys plenty of vocal support.

The absence of Barney Slaughter, slugging left fielder, weakened the Narberth attack considerably in Saturday's game. Barney, according to reports, was attending a wedding (Not his own, he insists.)

Paoli's home field bears the elegant name of Swampoodle Park. According to Mike Mulligan, sports scribe and well known wag, the poodle is entirely superfluous in describing the field.

Third game of the series this Saturday at the Playground. Come out and support Gene Davis' fighting team in their battle for the title.

The worst kind of men are those who do not care when others see them doing wrong.

'Time Out'

By TOMMY MACKLIN

The grand slam of the week-end will be the football game tomorrow at South Ardmore between Radnor and Haverford.

It's a very foolish schedule in my opinion, for it is a great game and should come later in the season when the teams are ready for real football. As it is, it ruins the season for one of the strongest teams in the suburbs and almost makes the other before the acorns begin to fall.

Which reminds me that this hot weather has held the Maroon back considerably, for Adam has been unable to scrimmage his team more than once or twice since practice began. Track suits seem to be the vogue so far on Pennypacker Field, and what the best dressed football player should wear would still be a secret if you checked up only on the champions of the Suburban football world.

You may look for a Maroon victory this afternoon, though Episcopal Academy is an unknown quantity so far as her competitive strength is compared with leading high schools in this vicinity.

One of the most interesting sidelights on the game is the fact that Jim Bradford, star end of Adam's team last year, will be playing against his old teammates as he wears the colors of the City Line Avenue school. Bradford is one of the best ends in the scholastic circles of Philadelphia, and his play will be interesting to watch.

Charlie Hale, last year's star at Montgomery Day School, will be with the Episcopal Academy team this year. Hale is a brilliant athlete and should be a threat in the backfield this afternoon.

Hughie Wynn and Day D'Amora just wrote us a letter from Notre Dame University, where they matriculated in the freshman class last week. Both are homesick, but are determined to make South Bend their home for the next four years.

Walton Forstall and Francis Shoemaker, the two local boys who are about to tour Europe a la bicycle this winter, were former Lower Merion students. They entered the Lower Merion Junior High School in the ninth grade the first year of its existence, and Forstall, particularly, has been an honor student ever since. Walton was a Phi Beta Kappa at Lehigh last year, edited the Brown and White, the official college newspaper, and had so many honors it would be difficult to list them. Francis was a good student, always listed near the top of his class. The two boys have been chums throughout their school careers. Good luck to them.

Dave Ridge has gone to Southern California for the winter. Dave was in good health, and denied that he had been harmed by football last year at all. He claims that the removal of his tonsils will probably relieve his annual tendency toward colds and numerous cases of grippe. The team will find it hard to replace Dave in the backfield, but there is always someone to fill the shoes of even the stars.

Harvey Buck will be the best back around in a couple of years, if his improvement continues. He is only a sophomore now, and he has the speed, the intelligence and the body to stand the pummeling. Here's hoping.

All out to the game.

Reynolds Holds Paoli Sluggers Helpless Sunday

Manager Charlie Madden selected Howard Graham, former Narberth pitcher, to oppose his old teammates and the Narberth batsmen found Howard's offerings very much to their liking, hammering out eleven hits, every man in the lineup getting at least one safety, while Bob Jones and Francis had two apiece.

After throwing away an excellent chance to score in the third when Jack Eachus trapped Jones off third base with an accurate throw, Narberth crashed into the scoring column in the fourth when MacGregor singled and made third with a beautiful hook slide on Slaughter's one-base blow and scored when Verna fumbled Jefferies' grounder. King then scored Slaughter with another single and the Boroughites were two runs to the good.

In view of Reynolds' great hurling these runs were ample for a victory, but the Davismen added another in the eighth on singles by Jefferies and Martin and an error by Girard.

Reynolds then ended the game in a blaze of glory by retiring Paoli on two pop flies and a roller to MacGregor in the eighth and fanning Davis, Sims and Harbutt in the last inning.

Subscription Plans Announced By Club

Membership in Narberth Players
Open to All Who Are Interested.

TO GIVE THREE PLAYS

At the last meeting of the Narberth Players organization, held September 10th, at the home of Mrs. James D. Moore, a set of By-Laws, drawn up by Wallis Boileau, chairman of that committee, was adopted, subject to certain additions and reservations.

Having proceeded to the point where law and order have been established, it is fitting that the Club now announces its subscription form of membership, as follows: Membership in the organization is open to all interested persons—and that must not be construed as limiting membership to those who aspire to take active part in the plays to be presented. It intends to convey that anyone interested in helping produce—or merely in watching the performances produced, is eligible to membership; in fact, it is only by having the support of such that the club can hope to progress. Each membership entitles the owner to any and all privileges of the club, but at the discretion of the purchaser, it need mean no more than the privilege, contained in membership dues, of receiving two tickets each to each play to be produced by the club during the year. These are guaranteed to be three in number, one in November, one in February and one in May.

If the plans of the membership committee go through, the house will be filled on the first night of each performance, with holders of subscription tickets, so that unless a repeat performance is given, the only possibility of viewing the plays will be in the holding of subscription seats. It is hoped that all the community will respond to assist in making this Players organization as famous as those connected with other communities have become; it is excellent publicity for Narberth, and it means genuine enjoyment and artistic relaxation for its citizens. So, all of you who are so minded, arrange for your subscription now, through any of the present club members, or direct through the membership chairman, Mrs. John Nash, at 80 Wynnedale Road, Narberth.

The next meeting will be in October, and during that month also the cast will be selected for the first play, and rehearsals begun. J. G.

The lecture will be delivered in the church edifice, Athens and Linwood Avenues, Ardmore. The public is cordially invited.

Noblitt and Sims Star in Westerners' Victory game during the second half, but after his scintillating performance Saturday, Manager Gene Davis will no doubt use him as a starting pitcher in one of the later games of the series.

For the victors, Jim Noblitt, returning to his old club after pitching for the Harrisburg Senators, hurled his usual effective game, rising to his greatest heights when Narberth men were on base and thwarting several thrusts when a base hit would have shattered his one-run lead. Paoli was handicapped by the absence of four regulars from the line-up, but their substitutes played a most capable game and one of them, a youth from Newtown Square named Sims, proved to be the hitting star of the game, banging out four clean singles and totally eclipsing those famed sluggers, Verna, Umbach and Girard, all of whom were unable to hit McKee safely.

Paoli lost no time in landing on Jackson. Sims opened the game with a slashing single to center. Shank followed with a sacrifice bunt, and singles by Umbach and Girard, a wild pitch and an error by Jackson put three Paoli runs over before a double play, MacGregor to Jefferies to Jones, halted the visitors' attack. When Harbutt opened the second inning with a single, Manager Davis removed Jackson and Jim McKee took up the pitching duties. Harbutt went to second on Haigh's infield out and galloped across on Sims' second single with the run that was to prove the winning margin. Jack Jefferies hammered out a long triple in the second and scored Narberth's first run when Sims let one of Noblitt's pitches go through him. The Davismen scored their other two counters in the sixth on singles by MacGregor and Martin and a splendid double by Bob Jones' efficient hot corner guardian.

Narberth had two excellent opportunities to score in the seventh and eighth innings, but on each occasion Noblitt managed to halt the Borough attack and protect his one-run lead.

Last Call for Mexican Exhibit at the Library

There is one more day to view the exhibit of Mexican life and industries at the Library, and then Miss Ellen Brinton, to whom the articles belong, will remove them for display elsewhere. From the beautifully woven straw mat which is their bed, to the wooden scales, emblem of their trading and the colorful belts, serapes and embroidered garments which comprise their costumes, the exhibit provides a very graphic picture of the life of the Mexicans.

To supplement this glimpse of life in our neighboring community, one will wish to read, or to re-read, Stuart Chase's "Mexico, a study of Two Americas." The comparisons suggested by the title are based mostly upon his study of the typical towns of Oaxaca and Tepoztlan, contrasted with the well known study of the town of "Middle-town" which represents cities and towns in the United States as affected by the machine age.

Mr. Chase is not overly sentimental in his sympathies with Mexican handicraft culture, but it is evident that he considers it an ideal in living, but one which could be enriched by certain attributes of western culture. In these days of noise and rush and stress it is difficult not to envy any people wherever found, who demand, as Mr. Chase says that the Mexicans do, the "ageless human overlay of non-material goods, light, color, music; festival and worship and these with maximum economy."

The book is written in collaboration with Mr. Chase's wife, Marian Tyler, and illustrated by the pencil sketches of Diego Rivera, who also illustrated Carleton Beals' "Mexican Maze." It is a most readable and artistic book as well as informative one and the author's statistical tendencies in no wise detract from the charm of his writing.

Rebuttal

To The Editor of Our Town:

I did not expect that my comment printed in "Our Town" on September 11 would go unchallenged. Nor did I expect, if it was challenged, to reply. Yet a final word on my part by way of clarification should be said.

We did not expect to stir up an argument on Church and State. We believe, and teach, that the Church and State are complementary one to the other. Without either the other could not exist as now is.

Our point was this, that practically everything fundamental that is fostered by most community organizations can be, and is, fostered by the churches. Where is there the opportunity of fellowship with others (and in addition with Jesus Christ) better afforded than through the churches? Where can more lasting friendships be found than in the churches? Where can a spirit of understanding be better fostered than through the churches? Where can a training in the Christian Way of Life, whether that be expressed in business, politics, or home, be better carried on than in the churches? If there are other, and more fundamental, objectives fostered by community organizations these too, I believe, the Church could and would do with the help of those workers who are finding their service expression in extra-church organizations.

Having been a Boy Scout, "Sabine" touches a warm spot with me when he reminds us of the struggle our community troop is having. Here I heartily agree the Church is the logical sponsor (and it is an argument for my view). That is just the point. We in the churches can't do the things we are expected to do because so many of our members choose rather to do a less fundamental piece of work through a community organization. A man has just so much leisure and if he chooses to give that leisure through a community organization what can the churches expect to accomplish through his service?

I said, and with this added clarity I emphasize, "it does seem to me as though we are contributing our energies (through community organizations) in a less useful way than if we contributed these same energies to the Lord's work through our respective churches."

"There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars" (you will not argue modern astronomy, will you?); for me the greatest glory is the glory of the "Son." I would that that glory would be greatest in the mind of every Christian.

Thank you, Mr. Editor. I shall not let this "bout" develop into a "tis" and "taint" argument. I think my point is now clear.

Respectfully,
Cletus A. Senft.

A Last Resort

The erection this week of a traffic light at the intersection of Montgomery Avenue and Meeting House Lane, Narberth, is in the nature of a last resort to control traffic at that dangerous intersection.

Montgomery Avenue, the boundary street at that point between Lower Merion Township and the Borough of Narberth, is a County Road but is policed by the Township. It was made a "Thru-Traffic" highway about a year ago and "Stop" signs were erected on all intersecting streets.

This did not prove sufficient to keep down the accidents which occurred with frequency at that intersection, made more dangerous because of a blind corner caused by the Friends Meeting House wall and the slope of the land.

While it may cause motorists roaring to or from town a little delay, the light will prove its worth if no more serious accidents take place at that intersection.

Fall Sports

Although one would never guess it by judging from the weather of the past several days, the football season is at hand and will be officially inaugurated on the Main Line at Pennypacker Field in Ardmore this afternoon (Friday) when Lower Merion High School will meet Episcopal Academy, of Overbrook.

Tomorrow, Harry Stuldreher's Wildcats, otherwise the Villanova College eleven, will open its season at the Villanova stadium against Loyola College of Baltimore.

Residents of the section may be anticipating the world series which will start before long in the Quaker City but out here on the Main Line two championship baseball series are being staged. At the Narberth Playground tomorrow, Narberth and Paoli will come to grips in the third game for the Main Line League title, while at the Cynwyd School field the Narberth and Cynwyd Fire Company teams will inaugurate their title series.

Nor is football and baseball all the sport that is available to sportsmen (and women) this weekend. The Bryn Mawr Horse Show, which opened on Wednesday, continues today and tomorrow.

Correcting a Wrong Impression

Some Ardmore business men seem to have acquired an erroneous idea of Lower Merion Township's newly enacted ordinance providing license fees for transient merchants.

It is being variously viewed as a law to keep any new merchants out of the community, to make the business section water-tight, as it were, and to keep down competition. This is not the case.

Lower Merion is the first municipality to adopt such an ordinance and its passage should be welcomed alike by both merchants and residents. It does not have as its purpose any idea of limiting the business section of Ardmore or of other communities in the Township to the present quota of business men. It does not seek to prevent legitimate competition.

It is an attempt, however, to distinguish between permanent business men and fly-by-night dealers who conduct closing out sales. It is an effort to maintain a type of business section that is in keeping with the high residential character of the Main Line. In discouraging this type of business by means of a stiff fee, legitimate business men are being aided by the removal of unfair and unwanted competition.

The whole problem in the administration of the ordinance rests in determining whether a newcomer is a transient or one who expects and hopes to become a permanent member of the business community. The framers of the ordinance have included a wise provision which provides for a penalty of $300 on a transient merchant who does not first take out a license. In other words, if there is any doubt about the permanency of a newcomer when he is first establishing himself, time settles the question and then, if he falls into the transient class, he is liable to a stiff fine.

Any efforts, however, to use this ordinance as a club to keep out legitimate business men is silly. The business community can only grow and prosper as it supplies the desires and needs of the section and surrounding districts. Competition keeps business keen and on its toes. Large selections of merchandise act as a magnet on shoppers.

Main Lines

Anent a Chess Club

Despite the multifarious clubs and organizations of one kind and another on the Main Line there is one form of social recreation which seems to be neglected and that is chess.

Often wrongly thought of as a game for long-headed intellectuals, it exercises the same fascination upon its addicts as bridge, backgammon, pinocle, and other games. Chess players, moreover, are a kindred spirited lot. They possess a camaraderie too often lacking among other game enthusiasts.

A subscriber who has this subject at heart writes: "I wonder if it would not be possible through the efforts of your paper to form a little club of chess players. I am a newcomer in this community and have not met any chess players but I feel sure there must be a number of people living on the Main Line who play or are interested in the game of chess and who would enjoy coming together a few evenings in a month to play chess."

There is the situation in a nutshell. Let the chess addicts who are interested in the proposition write to this paper in care of this column and we will see that they and the chessminded subscriber get together.

Narberth has furnished an illustration of what can be done along this line. A group of men who like bridge have gotten together and formed a men's bridge club in the borough which meets in an attractively furnished room in Elm Hall, which was up to this year the headquarters of the Women's Community Club of Narberth.

But for the existence of General Wayne, whose life is being enacted in a pageant at Wayne this week, the General Wayne Inn might have had another name, such as Lafayette Inn or Baron von Steuben House. Or the British might have named it Sir Henry Clinton Inn, and we all might be paying far more taxes than we are, as loyal subjects of the King, in the most heavily taxed country in the world. Although, come to think of it, if General Wayne and company had failed, and the colonies had never been lost to their mother country, England's conditions today might not be what they are. With the aid of Congressmen and Senators from America, Parliament would have been able long before now to muddle through its troubles more intelligently. And the inn would be selling other liquids and lubricants than gasoline and oil.

(Do we hear cries of "hear! hear!" or yells of "here! here!")

While we feel historically inclined, permit us to remind you that "Old Ironsides," otherwise yeleft "Constitution," is at anchor off the Port of Philadelphia. The hero of the War of 1812 has seen many vicissitudes in its long life, and its present tour was made possible largely by contributions of school children throughout the United States, including this section. We'll warrant that most of the children who aided make the ship presentable will not see it, even along this conveniently nearby seaboard.

What does this prove? you ask. Point your own moral. And tell us if you go to see the ship. We hope you do.

There are so many interesting places to visit in this section that many of us with little leisure are as unfamiliar with them as is a New Yorker with his tallest buildings and most interesting places. Among the places we have resolved for years to see are some of the buildings on the Parkway, the Zoological Gardens, the top of City Hall, the Elverson and Public Ledger buildings, and the home of a certain neighbor. True, we do take in the Zoo once in a while, when suitable numbers and ages of children are available to furnish us with an excuse. And we have visited Valley Forge so often, showing it to visitors from afar, that friend wife has declared in favor of headaches for herself, on such company occasions. We have visited In-

"Tabu" Due at Narberth

Sinclair Lewis' comedy, "Let's Play King," is showing at the Narberth Theatre this Friday and Saturday under the title of "Forbidden Adventure." The amusing tale of children and newly-rich parents has a good cast, including Mitzi Green, Jackie Searl, Edna May Oliver and Louise Fazenda. Of unusual appeal is "Tabu," Narberth's feature next Monday and Tuesday. Directed by Murnau, photographed entirely in the South Sea islands, and with a musical setting by Hugo Riesenfeld, the picture has been described almost unanimously by critics as a screen masterpiece. Only natives appear in the cast, and under the deft direction of the man who made "Sunrise," "The Four Devils" and "The Last Laugh," they enact a thrilling love drama which is a sensational human document of a Polynesian folk legend. The picture is not a "talkie"; it has a stirring musical setting in which Dr. Riesenfeld combined the chanting voices of the islanders with the score, deftly following the varying moods of the story, and increasing the reality and dramatic punch of a powerful narrative.

Next Wednesday and Thursday Narberth will play Dorothy Mackaill and Conrad Nagel in "The Reckless Hour"; on Friday and Saturday, "Transatlantic" is coming.

"Rebound" at Egyptian

Herbert Chambers' story, "Common Law," will appear on the Egyptian's talking screen this week-end, with Constance Bennett upholding her reputation as the best-dressed woman on the screen. A gorgeous sequence is a four-arts ball in the Parisian art colony. Because this picture is not recommended for children, the Saturday matinee will instead feature a tale of submarine warfare, "Seas Beneath," with George O'Brien.

Leonard "Melody Mac" McLain continues his organ recitals at the Egyptian, with the technique that brought him radio fame.

Earl Derr Biggers' Saturday Evening Post story, "The Black Camel," will be the Egyptian's feature Monday and Tuesday, with Warner Oland as Charlie Chan, aided by Sally Eilers, whose more recent characterization in "Bad Girl" has brought her to stardom.

Outstanding picture of the week and perhaps of the month at the Egyptian is "Rebound," in which Ina Claire, Robert Ames and Hale Hamilton give superb portrayals of unusually pleasing roles. The story is by Donald Ogden Stewart, whose "Laughter" gave Nancy Carroll her best cinema.

Ramon Novarro, Madge Evans and Conrad Nagel will appear in "Son of India" in Cynwyd next week-end. And also Jackie Coogan in an "Our Gang" comedy.

At a further hearing on Saturday, after being held on $500 bail, Mr. Fernside produced an affidavit that the animal had been killed at the University Hospital, Philadelphia.

We Deliver, City Line to Bryn Mawr

Echoes of the Election

Well, our two fellows made a great race, but the grade was altogether too stiff for a pair so heavily laden. In the popular estimation they were part of a Pinchot pack and there was not much to be done about it. The curious construction of the ticket bewildered the voters all along the line and the Johnson outfit was quick to place its punches in vulnerable spots. To the seasoned observer, the set-up was perfectly obvious and whilst Mr. Just and the Philadelphia newspapers might have been under the impression that the garrulous Governor had something to gain by an anti-machine victory, it is reasonable to say that no such strange thoughts were in the noodle of anyone of consequence on the independent side, and it was simply a situation where more astute men sought to garner State aid for their own cause.

As it turned out, the handicap far outweighed the help, and it can be said that this contingency was carefully weighed before the die was cast. The results proved that a bad guess was made, but they also prove that the organization can be soundly licked when the proposition is tackled as it can be done.

And to the man who does not depend on politics for his livelihood, there always ought to be a lively concern in keeping public affairs out of private control, if there is any meaning to the distinction claimed for American citizenship.

Giving fair value to the facts as they are now revealed, we believe that most men skilled in public contacts, and in forming public opinion, will agree that Lou Young could have been elected even on the "Boyd-Just" ticket if a more "modern" approach to the voters had been made. As it was, he came within 4000 ballots of reaching the goal, carrying a number of important districts, and only a few votes prevented his capture of Norristown, whilst a diversion of less than 5 per cent. of the total county vote would have brought him all the way home.

It's water over the dam, but we think a great opportunity was missed in not bringing a personality to the public, an alert young man with a colorful experience, a new, refreshing factor in Montgomery affairs, all the attractive background which interests people and makes them come your way.

There was no lead at all in the campaign direction, no concerted firing, no evidence of a definite plan or purpose, and the only advertising which we saw seemed to carry an implied threat that, if Johnson won, the great amount of State money which was available for winter work in the county would not be spent, a fact which was hardly convincing or impressive to those numerous men and women who were, as Mr. Wood says he was, filled with indecision.

Not a single piece of mail-matter came into Narberth from the independent headquarters and, from what we hear, none was sent to any other place. The local workers mailed their own to borough voters, but apparently sufficient funds were not available to distribute county-wide the stirring, new-idea kind of vote-getter which would have helped to bowl over the several weak-sister epistles which arrived from the Johnson faction.

Continuing to cry over spilled milk, it has to be confessed that, excepting Young, Walzer and Asnip, the independent candidates were as futile on the stump as the organization candidates, and that is to say they were simply terrible.

We did not hear Stewart Nase, the Johnson candidate for District Attorney, but we know him personally and imagine he handles himself particularly well on the hustings. We did hear all the others and they were a circus. The independents would have profited exceedingly by the contrast if they had been taken in hand and made to say their pieces in a manner which their auditors would have remembered to the advantage of the cause. Those who were hopelessly inarticulate should have been kept in their seats and we observed that Fletcher Stites did that very thing in the meeting at Ardmore, but even he could not prevent the harrowing mental torture which was visited on the audience by Mr. Hendrick's interminable dissertation on Mennonite genealogy.

To his great credit, Lou Young said what he had to say in forceful, terse language and always did himself and his ticket good. Fred Walzer was a real surprise package as an orator, using homely illustrations galore and getting his points home in highly effective fashion. Senator Boyd told us that Fred as a speaker made a rousing hit with the political workers and he gives our chief justice full and direct credit for carrying two Norristown wards for the independent ticket. It was part of Fred's hard luck that four other candidates vied with him for the Sheriff nomination.

In Narberth the vote was, of course, overwhelmingly for our own men, the extraordinary number of Johnson workers who were active the day long making no dent at all. The ratio of votes to the registered number was also the highest in the county, and that was an additional feather in our cap. The majority here practically offset the organization's majority in Lower Merion, and in fact Narberth's vote was the most lopsided of any other place.

Town pride was the order of the day and there was evidence of how deep the feeling was in that respect when midnight came and a melee almost started at District No. 2, where the workers waited on the outside for the final returns on the borough vote. In a small town, it is not always easy for one to explain why one conflicts with a preponderant neighborhood opinion, particularly when the neighborhood was coping with the outside and when it was having its first chance in forty years to secure a place in the county firmament.

THE SPECTATOR.

Extends Appreciation

To the Editor of "Our Town":

We did not win in the county, but we did win at home, and in a big way. Thanks, everybody, and I know you will believe me when I say that I would a hundred times rather lose the county than I would lose the town where I have lived for 35 years.

We put up the best fight we could, but were overcome by a money-bag which was bigger than the Johnson organization ever used before. They sent plenty of it into Narberth, as you all know, but much good it did them here, as our wonderful vote makes clear. There were at least a half dozen of paid hirelings around each one of the three polling booths and to earn their pay they moved heaven and earth to get out something that looked like a vote, and the flock of them sneaked home at night with positively no results, and with their tails between their legs, as I suppose all black sheep do.

I mention this part of the day's work only because everybody seems to be so much exercised about this group's attack on their own home town, but we must not forget that some people will do anything for money and also that some birds always soil their own nests. We don't have to worry about a bunch like that, as they are done in Narberth, and they know they're done, not because I say it, but because 90 per cent. of our residents have their number and won't forget it.

Every one of our workers was a volunteer and they pulled hard to get representation in county affairs for Narberth. To them I extend my sincerest appreciation and also to everybody who helped in any way. I am proud of myself because of what you did for me and I won't like it at all if you don't give me a chance to do something for you.

Thanks, one and all, thanks very much.

Very truly yours,
FRED WALZER.

But when we read the booklet, "Glimpses of Philadelphia," published by the Philadelphia Business Progress Association, 1442 Widener Building, we realized the truth of that Al Jolson assertion, "You ain't seen nothing yet." The booklet does not list many places, such as the Merion Friends' Burying Place, at Meeting House Lane, in which one of our ancestors' relatives, a namesake of ours, is buried. Perhaps the omission was intentional. It lists the Autocar Company at Ardmore, but neglects Bryn Mawr, and Haverford Colleges. Among its sponsors is Dr. Herbert J. Tily, of Cynwyd. Send for a copy; it will give hints for many interesting week-end trips.

Legion Notes

Lively Fight Expected for Commandership of Post

At the first regular meeting on Monday of the Harold D. Speakman Post, American Legion, following the summer recess, the Post members will elect officers for the coming year. Last-minute developments indicate that there will be a lively contest for the honor of the Post commandership. It is expected that some of the names submitted by the Nominating Committee will be accepted by the Post members without a contest. The commandership carries with it the responsibility for appointment to the various committees which carry on the work of the Post. Among these the most important are the House Committee and the Welfare Committee.

ANOTHER AUTUMN SEASON

—another opportunity to serve our Main Line Customers, during a rushing shopping period, from this easily accessible Main Line Home Store.

When we speak of this Suburban Store as the Main Line Home Store, we do so justifiably — our Main Line Customers have made it so.

A high ideal of store service prompted us to take our shopping facilities closer to the homes of our many Main Line Customers, and from the moment our doors opened, less than one and one-half years ago, we found ourselves among most appreciative friends. A new store truly, but in a community with an old and honored sentiment pervading it.

And now with this new season opening up, we wish to remind our clientele that we are better able to serve them than ever before. The experience acquired, the great encouragement received, and our unwavering faith in this new enterprise as a mighty factor in Suburban Home Life — all combine to make Your Main Line Store a Better Store with every day that passes.

A Page of Local Home and Garden Information

By ROBERT J. EDGAR

The third day of autumn.

Whew!

Dahlias burning in the heat.

And the hardy "mums" waiting for cool nights—

And so are we.

This Friday and Saturday gardeners go to Bryn Mawr.

Saturday afternoon the garden visits.

Still plenty of time to rebuild that lawn—or top-dress and re-sow the old one. And don't forget to grub-proof the lawn against beetle grubs.

Poinsettias prefer a temperature of sixty degrees and over. That one from last Christmas that was carefully repotted in June had better be brought into the house and placed in a sunny window—and kept watered of course.

The first frost is due in about three weeks or about October 15. Who can tell what the rest of 1931 will bring forth? After the first killing frost, or black frost, is the time to carefully dig dahlia clumps—with two fork-spades—and also dig up gladioli bulbs as well as tuberose and other tender bulbs. More about this later.

Dahlia growers know that we usually get a frost and then about three weeks of nice, mild growing weather.

The ten most satisfactory border perennials for effect and for cutting are—tall bearded irises, columbines, pyrethrum, linum perenne, peonies, Oriental poppies, hybrid delphiniums, hardy phlox, hardy asters and chrysanthemums. Opinions vary, but these are the kinds more widely grown.

Lilies are, to be sure, indispensable in the hardy garden. Candidum, regale and the speciosums are the favorites for beds and borders. For the woodland garden Canadense and Philadelphicum are the easy ones to start with. The speciosum lilies will probably not arrive for planting until December.

Watch the tulip layout. Some varieties are very early and some are late, even among the Darwin, cottage and breeders. Some are much taller than others. The dealer who is really interested in the success of your garden will show the height and relative time of flowering in his catalog.

Plant narcissi poeticus (pheasant's eye) with phlox divaricata Laphamii, or grape hyacinths in back of primula vulgaris. And if you have some tiarella cordifolia in a half shady place plant jonquils near them. Both the poet's and the jonquils are sweetly fragrant.

Biennials for fall planting will include sweet-william, Canterbury bells, chieranthus Allioni—that bright orange Siberian wallflower, and foxgloves. The foxgloves are better in a half shady corner where they may be allowed to seed themselves.

And don't forget to get seeds of hardy annuals to sow among the newly planted perennials and bulbs. Blue cornflower, annual larkspur—pink to be sure, Shirley poppies and annual pinks. All are hardy and will be most welcome in early summer. The places should be marked so that Tony, Sambo or Mike will not weed them out.

Alyssum edgings may be sown in the fall.

Narberth Methodists Plan Loyalty Appeal

they planned for such building that they must place their faith in the generosity of their members and friends for possibly several successive efforts before they would be emancipated from embarrassing debt. They have now planned to use this first anniversary of their occupancy of the new building as the logical occasion to launch a three-year campaign for additional pledges for the further reduction of their indebtedness. Careful planning has brought them to the decision that the most practical scheme is to seek shares which shall be valued at $36.00 each from their membership and constituency. These shares will be paid during the next three years which permits a methodical monthly handling of the matter. Teams of canvassers will visit all members and friends seeking their support. The Official Board by vote has set the goal for this forward movement at $45,000.00.

As an introduction to the intensive campaign an anniversary banquet has been planned for Friday evening, October 2nd. A Steering Committee composed of the following persons: Fletcher W. Stites, H. K. Strickler, W. J. Bailey, H. A. Frye, Mrs. A. W. Ward, C. K. Stahl, A. K. Le Fevre, Mrs. M. M. More, Mrs. H. M. Chalfant and Mrs. W. C. Griffiths, will formulate the plans to make this dinner an outstanding event during anniversary week. An entertaining program will be provided and every interest of the church will be considered. It is hoped that there will be large support by the members and friends of the church.

Outstanding speakers will be heard from the pulpit during the next four Sundays, and the series of services will be under the direction of the Rev. Samuel MacAdams, the pastor.

On Sunday, Sept. 27th, Dr. John Watchorn, Superintendent of the West District, will preach. Dr. Frank MacDaniel, formerly of Pennington Seminary and now of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, will preach Oct. 4th. On Oct. 11th, Dr. H. C. Leonard, also of this board will be heard. These guest preachers will bring stimulating messages to the membership and community and should be greeted by large audiences.

The culmination of this anniversary effort will be on Oct. 18th in a Jubilee Victory Service when pledges will be announced after the intensive personal canvassing of the entire membership by the teams of the officials. An attractive program will make this a memorable day in the life of the church. This campaign for additional funds will not be conducted on any narrow sectarian basis. This beautiful church is a distinct community asset and its freedom from debt will increase its ability to serve the community. The officials, therefore, confidently expect a wide and sympathetic interest in this important work which they have undertaken.

Senator Stites is chairman of the Steering Committee, and the Pastor, Rev. Samuel MacAdams, is chairman of the joint committees who have been assigned different features of the work.

Last Haverford Avenue

Vacant Stores to Be Taken

Haverford Avenue's vacant store, near Narberth Avenue, will be occupied the end of next week when Mr. and Mrs. George Albert's Majestic Electric Shop will move into it. Harry Hauer vacated it when he opened his larger delicatessen shop. The Alberts and their son, George, opened their shop for the sale and service of Majestic radios and refrigerators November of last year, on Narberth Avenue to the rear of the Merion Title and Trust Company. Their shop had been occupied by the Flower Shop before Mrs. Norman Jefferies moved her establishment to 233 Haverford Avenue. Next week's change will leave no store vacant on Haverford Avenue.

Large gold letters above their show window indicate that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Whiteside's food market at 237 Haverford Avenue has become a Quaker Store. It is expected that both this store and Howard F. Cotter's market, which are the only Quaker Stores in Narberth, will have a special "opening" the end of next week.

Gracing the Arcadia Restaurant's window since Tuesday night is a Neon "Sea Food" sign, to help Haverford Avenue look a bit more like Chestnut Street.

Two years in the making was the superb model of "Old Ironsides" which was placed on display in Ricklin's Hardware Store window this week. It was carved by hand, entirely of wood, by George B. Coleman, 105 Price Avenue. The ship itself, you know, may now be seen when visiting Philadelphia.

Narberth School District Reduces Its Indebtedness

maining work is being done after school hours and week-ends so that it will not interfere with the regular school sessions.

All classes are now in session, the upper grades have begun work on Monday and the lower grades on the 14th. A total enrollment of 503, including the Kindergarten and Eighth grade is reported by W. James Drennan, supervising principal. Last year's enrollment, without an Eighth grade was 425. The registration by grades is as follows: kindergarten, 30; First grade, 54; Second grade, 53; Third grade, 49; Fourth grade, 63; Fifth grade, 54; Sixth grade, 58; Seventh grade, 64; Eighth grade, 78.

Arrangements are being made to take care of those children who were presented for Kindergarten enrollment after the enrollment date. The school authorities will notify these parents as soon as their children can be cared for.

Children may bring their lunches to school and eat in their home rooms until the cafeteria is ready for use. Milk for lunch may be ordered weekly.

Interviews with teachers must be arranged for at times other than during school sessions, i. e., before or after school. Interviews with the Supervising Principal should be arranged for by telephone. These requests are made because of the many duties of the teaching staff and principal.

Set your clocks and watches back one hour this Saturday night. Daylight Saving Time ends officially 2 A. M. Sunday, September 27.
